Postcursor and Starry Nite are exercises in relational design. Each microsite uses machine learning to generate graphics according to users' hand movements, exploring the notion of process-as-product.